Short Bio

Thomasz van der Waal is an International Law Fellow at IntLaw LLP. He holds an LL.M. in Public International Law from Leiden University, where he wrote his thesis entitled “Complicity of States in International Crimes through Arms Transfers: Mechanisms of Avoidance of Responsibility,” as well as an LL.B. from Tilburg University. His primary areas of interest include public international law, international human rights law, and international environmental law.

Thomasz has served as a teaching assistant at Leiden University in the first-year Public International Law course, supporting students in their initial engagement with the discipline. He has also worked as a legal drafter for a human rights NGO, preparing supporting memoranda in family reunification proceedings. In addition, he collaborates with the Telders Project, contributing to initiatives aimed at making public international law more accessible to younger audiences.

At IntLaw LLP, Thomasz works across the firm’s international law matters. His work includes contributing to legal research and memoranda, supporting international proceedings, and assisting with the preparation of materials for clients and capacity-building initiatives. He also contributes to the organization of IntLaw LLP’s events and supports the firm’s broader international activities.
